CEO Statement

Jim Gallagher, CEO stated, “During this low point in the cycle for the junior mining market Clean Air Metals remains focused on prudent cash management and developing the targets and execution plan for the next phase of drilling on the down plunge extension of the Escape deposit expected to start in early 2024. We are confident that the pending supply crisis for the critical metals which are necessary to drive the green economy will bring investors back to the mining space with substantially improved commodity prices. Of particular significance for Clean Air Metals is the expected demand increase for Platinum given its role in the production and consumption of green Hydrogen. The Thunder Bay North project will potentially be one of the only primary Platinum mines in the world outside of South Africa.”
